Gold Rush Pairs Today

The ACBL is offering this gold pairs game at tournaments for 0-300 and 300-750 MP players; these games are scored over the two sessions, not as two separate games. You will only play against other 0-750 MP players. Gold points paid to section top and overall winners. Players are competing in a 0-750 game, but the 0-300 MP players can win

Gold points by placing in the overalls (as there are no gold points given for finishing overall in the 0-300 games.) You must play in both sessions. The best things about this event: it's a one-day event and the level of the competition is not prohibitive. See you at 1PM and

The Rule of 2-1-0

All other things being equal, in a highly competitive auction, the "five level belongs to the opponents" is NOT necessarily true.

This will help you decide how to compete.

- · Holding TWO cards in their suit, double.
- · Holding ONE card in their suit, pass.
- Holding ZERO cards in their suit, bid one more. Nothing is guaranteed, but the odds work.

After Budget Cuts, Readers Mourn Bridge Column and Movie Clock By MARGARET SULLIVAN APRIL 29, 2015

---continued---

The bridge column, she said, wasn't a huge expense but it is particularly time-consuming for the copy desk to edit, since "you have to play the game in order to check it and make sure it's right."

As for the movie listings, they were a significant expense. Eliminating them from the print edition helped her to keep the freelance budget as strong as possible, she said. (Readers can still see what movies are playing in their area by going to The Times's Movies page.)

All of this comes in the context of The Times reinventing itself from mostly a print newspaper to mostly a digital news and information company. It's a very tricky transition since most revenue still comes from print but the future is certainly digital. I wrote about it in a recent Sunday Review column, and in a follow-up post. And I wrote about the ending of the Home section recently, too.

Will the features be back by popular demand? Ms. Mattoon can't offer that hope to readers. Nor is it very likely that The Times has seen the end of budget cuts as it deals with the decline of print advertising revenue.

"It's regrettable," Ms. Mattoon said. "We would like to keep everything. We know that these features provide a service and a connection to the paper, and that things like the bridge column speak uniquely to a certain audience."

I can't argue with Ms. Mattoon's decisions, which seem to have been carefully, even agonizingly, considered.

There are no good choices here, and I agree with her that The Times's exclusive journalism — the work of its critics and reporters and those who support and edit their work — must be the top priority. But I'm also sympathetic with those longtime readers, who might reasonably feel that their concerns have slipped down the priority list.

The Opinion Pages | LETTERS Shock Over Bridge Column

APRIL 29, 2015

To the Editor:

Re "Reflecting as a Run Comes to an End," by Phillip Alder (Bridge column, April 27):

How could you? In these days of devastating earthquakes, uprisings in Baltimore, and fear and uncertainty around the world, you are severing from your paper the one bastion of stability, intellect, escapism perhaps and "card sense" that has been my refuge (as well as for so many others) for lo these many years.

What's next, the Times crossword? Please don't tell me.

MARILYN SCHWARTZ Maitland, Fla.

To the Editor:

I am sorry, so sorry, even shocked (and not like that guy in "Casablanca") that you are ending the bridge column. It is a major reason I subscribe to the paper. Please reconsider.

VINCENT MARONEY Garden City, N.Y.

Responding to 1NT Openings, Part III - 4th in a series of 5 by David Lindop

For responding to 1NT, the Summary Chart gives an overview of our methods:

RESPONSES

2♣: Stayman

2♦: 5+ hearts (transfer)
2♥: 5+ spades (transfer)
2♠: transfer to 3♠ (to sign off)

clubs or diamonds)

3♣/3♦: 6+ suit; invit. to 3NT 3♥/3♠: Forcing; invit. to slam

We previously looked at the basic use of Stayman and Transfers. Now let's look a little deeper.

Exercising Judgment

Both Stayman and transfers are tools that are available and responder must choose when to use them.

Partner opens 1NT and we have to decide what to do holding ♠Q83 ♥97642 ♦KJ ♣J84. With a five-card major, we can respond 2♦ to transfer opener to 2♥ and pass, but is that the best choice? We can't be sure 2♥ will be better than 1NT. Partner might have a doubleton heart. Even if partner has three hearts, we might still take as many tricks in notrump as hearts with all our high cards in side suits. Also, we have 7 high-card points plus 1 length point for the five-card suit, for a total of 8. With 8-9 points, we usually invite game. Should we plan to transfer to hearts and then bid 2NT, inviting game?

There's no right answer. Some players would pass 1NT; some would transfer to 2♥ and pass; some would transfer and bid 2NT. The point is that our conventions don't provide answers, just methods to apply once we decide what we want to do.

Transfers and Slam

With a five-card or longer major, it seems automatic to start with a transfer when partner opens 1NT. However, if we also have 16 or more points and are interested in reaching slam, we must look ahead. A simple raise after a transfer is only inviting game and a jump to game is a signoff How do we show slam interest?

Here holding ♠KJ3 ♥KJ974 ♠AQ ♠Q94, we have 16 high-card points plus 1 length point for the five-card suit. That's enough to invite slam but not enough to commit the partnership to slam. The way to do this is to start with a transfer to hearts and then bid 4NT:

OPENER RESPONDER
2♥ 4NT

4NT is not Blackwood. It's similar to a quantitative—invitational—raise from 1NT to 4NT except that we are showing a five-card heart suit along the way. With a minimum, opener can pass or bid 5♥ with three-card or longer support. With a maximum, opener can accept the invitation by jumping to 6♥ or 6NT.

Here, holding ♠AJ1085 ♥KJ2 ♠Q4 ♠AK4, we have 18 high-card points and 1 length point for the five-card suit. That's enough to bid slam. To show the five-card major and let opener choose between 6♠ and 6NT, we transfer to spades and jump to 5NT:

OPENER RESPONDER
2♠ 5NT

This isn't the grand slam force. It simply asks opener to pick a slam:  $6 \triangleq$  with three-card or longer support; otherwise 6NT. There's no need to ask for aces in this type of auction. We have enough combined strength that we shouldn't be missing two aces. It's more likely we could be missing the  $\P A$ -Q or A-K!

A hand like this, ♠AJ ♥KQ985 ♦AQ107 ♣74, is a little more awkward. We aren't sure if we belong in slam and we also don't know whether we belong in hearts, diamonds, or notrump. Fortunately, we can do a little exploration because a new suit is forcing after a Jacoby transfer. We can begin the auction like this:

OPENER RESPONDER

2♥ 3♦

Our transfer bid of 2 $\blacklozenge$  shows five or more hearts and our subsequent bid of 3 $\blacklozenge$  is forcing, showing four or more diamonds. It doesn't say we forgot we were playing transfers! Hopefully, opener's next bid will help us decide what to do. If opener bids 3 $\blacktriangledown$ , for example, showing support for hearts, we can cuebid 3 $\spadesuit$  and begin looking for slam. If instead, partner bids 3NT, showing no interest in either hearts or diamonds, we can pass or make one more try with an invitational raise to 4NT. No one said transfers were going to make things any easier! They just give us some new options.

With a six-card or longer major and enough strength for a slam, such as  $\triangle AJ9873 \lor 2 \land AQJ \triangle A84$ , we can simply transfer to the major and bid slam. Here we could bid  $2 \lor 4000 \lor 400$

But what if we want to invite slam with a six-card or longer suit, or explore delicately for a grand slam? Holding ♠83 ♥AKJ973 ♦QJ3 ♣A94, If we start with a transfer of 2♦ and opener bids 2♥, what next? A raise to 3♥ would be invitational; a raise to 4♥ would be a signoff; a bid of 3♦ would show a second suit. We could jump to 5♥ as an invitation, but that riskS getting us too high.

Some partnerships have methods (such as Texas transfer bids) to help get around this dilemma. In Standard, however, we can use the popular approach of treating an immediate jump to 3♥ or 3♠ by responder as a slam try, showing a six-card or longer suit. With a poor fit for the major,

INTERMEDIATE/NOVICE PLAYERS PAGE

Responding to 1NT Openings, Part III - 4th in a series of 5 by David Lindop

opener bids 3NT. With a good fit, opener can raise to game with a minimum or cuebid (instead of accepting the transfer) with a maximum. A bid of 4NT by responder would now be the Blackwood convention.

From Opener's Side

After opening 1NT, most of opener's rebids are automatic. Even later bids are usually limited to answering questions posed by responder. With a balanced hand and 15 high-card points, such as♠KJ83 ♥J2 ◆AQ5 ♣KJ74, we open 1NT. If responder bids 2♣, we bid 2♠, showing the four-card major suit. If responder then raises to 3♠, we pass since responder is asking whether we have a minimum or a maximum, and we have a minimum.

If responder bids 2♦, we automatically accept the transfer by bidding 2♥. If responder then bids 2NT, we pass because we have a minimum. If responder bids 3NT—asking us to choose between 4♥ and 3NT—we pass with only a doubleton heart. Opener does have one option when responder transfers. With four-card support, opener can "super accept" by jumping a level. (There are variations outside the current scope.) So, if partner were to respond 2♥, we could jump to 3♠ with this hand rather than bidding 2♠. This might get the partnership too high if responder has a weak hand and was planning to pass, but it might also get us to a close game if responder has a hand just short of an invitation.

Partscore in a Minor

Since 2♣ is Stayman and 2♦ is a transfer to hearts, we have no way to stop in partscore at the two level in a minor suit. This is a disadvantage of these conventions. To play in a minor suit, we have to go to the three level. Standard use the popular approach of extended transfers, which takes advantage of the fact that a response of 2♠ is no longer needed to show spades when the partnership uses Jacoby transfers: • 2♠ asks opener to bid 3♠. Responder can then pass to leave the partnership in a club partscore or bid 3♦ to play partscore in diamonds.

With this hand, ♠863 ♥5 ♦Q108752 ♣J84. we respond 2♠ to 1NT. When opener dutifully bids 3♠, we bid 3♦ and opener is expected to pass. This shows a weakness of extended transfers: the strong hand is dummy when responder has diamonds. However, methods to get around this (such as four suit transfers) are outside our current scope.

As usual, we have to exercise judgment as responder. If partner opens 1NT, holding  $43 \text{ }\sqrt{976} \text{ }\sqrt{972} \text{ }\sqrt{976}$ , we have a choice between passing and bidding  $24 \text{ }\sqrt{976} \text{ }\sqrt{976} \text{ }\sqrt{976}$ . Will we better off playing at the three level in clubs? Hard to tell. It's probably best to pass and let partner try to scramble seven tricks in 1NT.

Don't waste time transferring when the partnership is headed for game. With this hand, ♠Q8 ♥97 ♦AJ5 ♣K108764, simply raise to 3NT.

Inviting Game in a Minor

Extended transfers don't provide a way to invite game with a minor suit. Since we rarely want to play in 5♣ or 5♦ even with a fit in a minor suit, we usually raise to 2NT to invite game when holding a five-card or longer minor suit.

With this hand, ♠83 ♥J97 ♦QJ963 ♠A104, for example, we simply raise to 2NT and don't mention diamonds.

However, with a good six-card minor suit—typically headed by two of the top three honors—our methods do provide an alternative: • A jump to  $3 \clubsuit$  or to  $3 \spadesuit$  invites opener to bid 3NT. With this hand,  $4 \& 83 \triangledown 76 \spadesuit AQ10653 \clubsuit 1084$ , we would jump to  $3 \spadesuit$  in response to 1NT. With a poor fit for diamonds, opener will pass and we'll stop in partscore in diamonds.

If partner has a fit for diamonds— the missing ♦K—and stoppers in the other suits, partner can bid 3NT and try for nine tricks.

Minor Suit Slams

Investigating slam in a minor suit is awkward. To make a forcing bid in a minor suit, we have to start with 2♠ and then bid the minor suit. Suppose we hold ♠J3 ♥97642 ♦AQJ753 ♣AK4. If partner opens 1NT, a response of 2♦ would be a transfer; a response of 2♠ followed by 3♦ over opener's 3♠ would be a signoff; and a jump to 3♦ would be invitational. Instead, we begin by responding 2♠. Opener is going to assume this is Stayman and will bid 2♠, 2♥, or 2♠. Now we bid 3♦ which (hopefully) alerts partner that we actually have a strong hand with diamonds.

Opener can bid 3NT with a poor fit for diamonds and no interest in slam. With a fit for diamonds, opener can simply raise to 4 or make a cuebid with a maximum and interest in reaching slam. Our slam bidding methods can take over from there.

A hand like this, ♠83 ♥AQ97 ♦J5 ♣JAKJ84, can be challenging when responding to 1NT. We start with 2♣. If opener bids 2♥, we want to invite slam in hearts. Perhaps the simplest call we can make is 5♥. (To ask for aces we would jump to 4♣, Gerber.)

If opener bids 2♦ or 2♠, we now bid 3♠. This is forcing, showing slam interest in clubs. If opener bids 3NT, we can pass and give up on slam or make one more try by raising to 4NT. If opener raises clubs or bids another suit, we can move toward slam.

Our methods give us lots of options but we still have to decide how best to make use of them.

In tomorrow's issue, part 5 of 5, we'll look at handling interference and responses to 2NT
